Forgotten Books. Paperback. Condition: New. 94 pages. Dimensions: 9.0in. x 6.0in. x 0.2in. Excerpt from Bird News, Vol. 1. Be it, what it may - with the fundamental principles already observed; with average care bestowed upon the species of birds congregated and attention given to their habits, food and other demands; almost any structure or any arrangement will have a large measure of success. The site is important; possibly in this climate a north or northwest frontage or frontage and ends would suit most localities. A detached building would have sun allround, and would here need only special protection according to the direction of prevailing winds and rain. It is well to note in passing that birds dislike wind, and should be protected from it. Above all, don't place your seed hoppers or feed boxes in the wind, for it is as risky and unpleasant for a bird to eat its spray-millet or German rape, in a wind current, as it is for some bald headed epicure to eat blue points, or cracked crab at a window ledge or ventilator shaft. The shed or inclosed portion of the aviary wants to be light, roomy, well-ventilated and free from drafts. Material, wood, brick or reinforced concrete. The foundations should be well sunk into the ground and so constructed that rats, mice, or gophers, cannot gain entrance. If elevated above ground the piers, or posts, should be capped with wire netting, or other metallic cowls, which would prevent vermin climbing up the supports. The elevated house has many advantages, which render it a desirable class of structure. The floor should be planed boards, grooved and tongued, or else cement finished, and should always have a slight incline in order to run off water when wasted. The floor independent of its composition should always be...
