Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Legends of Lumb Lane It happened on a bitterly cold night. There was frost, and such a sharp wind. I was walking home, and the clock had nearly reached midnight. Overhead the stars were bright, but the cold wind crept inside my overcoat. In the houses most people had gone to bed. I turned up Oak Lane and along St. Mary s Road, past the Children s Hospital. From the long windows of the hospital little lights shone. I felt something was going to happen to me, but nothing did - not then. Once or twice I thought I heard feet pattering behind me, and I looked back. I saw nobody, only a cat darting into the shadow, or a stray dog. As I went down the hill to the Grove, where we then lived, the wind blew more wildly. I heard footsteps again; pattering, pattering. I stood still a moment; then I said to myself: Noodle, and hurried on and reached the house. I opened the door and stole in. I said, softly: Hurrah when I came to my room, for the fire was still alight. That was the time when we had a maid who caught the house on fire twice (only a little). You could depend on her for a fire. I poked the coal into a blaze, sat down and spread my cold hands in front of the dancing flames. The house was very quiet. All at once I heard a little knock on the outside door. I thought: Whoever can it be at this time of night? It came again; so I went. On the step was a boy....
