Corollary II. 397. If the time of revolution be given =p, and q be put to denote the time wherein a (solid) sphere, of the same density with the spheroid, must revolve; so that the centrifugal force, at the equator thereof, may be equal to the gravity: then, as this last time is known to continue the same, whatever the magnitude of that sphere is;f and the centrifugal forces, in equal l313 circles, are also known to be inversely as the squares of the periodic times--it follows, that p . q1;AO (the attraction, or centrifugal force, respecting the 2 i? 4 Z? 2 sphere O A, revolving in the time q) .
