To the still mightier Present, from the midst Of all these vestiges of centuries gone, That strew the plains and hills around I ask The question thousands have thus asked before, And get the common answer--echo! Here, Green on the crown'd acclivities, or dark In the dim twilight of oerarching trees That clothe the valleys, we behold remains Of human toil and triumph and dismay, Oer which the oak that counts five hundred years Spreads his protecting branches: --walls of earth; Tlascalan gateways; sacrificial mounds; The altars of a worship we know not; And, beautiful in their silence, tombs of men Who died before the parent tree had cast The seed from which arose this hoary trunk, That lies so low at last! But though the eye Meets these rude records, turn where'er it will, () They tell no...
