Excerpt from An Address, in Commemoration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of the Incorporation of the Town of Hubbardston, Mass., Delivered June 13th, 1867: A Poem, Together With Other Proceedings and Exercises Connected With the Occasion, With an Appendix, Containing a List of the Municipal Officers, and Other Interesting Matter It is not only fitting, therefore, that we pay an honest tribute to the heroic deeds and manly virtues of the fathers, but it is important also that we gather up and preserve the records, so that children's children may know what has been done for them. Some of the ancient nations saw so much the importance of a brilliant history to set before their young men, that where the record was obscure, or lacking in brilliant deeds, they supplied the deficiency with glowing fable. In some countries it was the custom to bring out the boys, at certain seasons, and show them the works of their fathers, and tell them of all the brilliant achievements of the past, that they might be inspired to do and dare. Such is...
