Excerpt: .hatred thou hast cause, Tis just that thou abhor me; but if not, Why this abhorrence? Me did Tyndarus Give to thy father, not that I should die, Nor my poor children: yet he led away, Her nuptials with Achilles the pretence, To Aulis led my daughter, in whose bay His fleet was stationed; on the altar there My Iphigenia, like a blooming flower, Did he mow down. Averting hostile arms That threatened desolation to the state, Or for the welfare of his house, to save His other children, if for many one A victim he had slain, the deed had found Forgiveness: but for Helena, because She was a wanton, and his faithless wife Her husband could not punish, for this cause My daughter he destroyed; yet for these wrongs, Great as they were, I had not been enraged, Nor had I slain...
