

Laura and Paul

By Catherine C. McCall

Trafford Publishing, Canada, 2006. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 249 x 173 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Laura and Paul is a story about two children who find philosophical wonderment in everyday life. Written to encourage children's critical and creative thinking, 'Laura and Paul' is loved by children of all ages who identify with both the characters and the situations in the story. The story follows Laura and Paul at home and at school where they wonder about questions such as 'Are numbers real?', 'What is trust?', 'Is it fair to lock animals in cages?', 'What makes a picture beautiful?', 'What makes me the person I am?', 'How do we know what is true?' The story transforms the ideas of great philosophers into recognisable situations from daily family life. Swept along by the plot twists and mysteries, the child (and adult) reader is introduced to philosophical puzzles and dilemmas which transport them effortlessly into the realm of philosophical wonder, thinking and reasoning. Enjoyed throughout the world by adults and children as young as six, 'Laura and Paul' transforms lives by showing how to find wonder, delight and mystery in what can appear to be...
