Excerpt: .always large, roomy and of varied styles, surmounted with domes, pinnacles and minnarets and ornamented with statutes of artistic design and workmanship. The material of which these are built is white marble. Atlantis can well claim not only the honor of being so created, but of remaining a white city. There is no darkening effluvium in the air nor the climate to obscure the white walls set in the great billows of surrounding green. Our Magi say, that in days to come, a nation on the Mediterranean Sea called the Greeks, will personify in their works of art, our beloved city as a beautiful woman rising from the sea. The more important of these buildings are profusely decorated with gold, and it is for this purpose that metal is so eagerly bought by the Atlantian traders, a poetical name-- the tears of the sun, has been adopted by our people,...
