We all know that exercise is an essential part of any fitness programme. So why do so many people struggle to go to the gym, take a walk or just move their bodies from the familiar perch in front of the TV or computer screen? The answer is simple, highly relevant and profound. The reason that so many people buy gym memberships and never show up to exercise is simply a question of habits. Making exercise a regular part of our lives when we re not used to doing it involves a change in our behaviour. Most of us have developed the habit of not exercising and the effort of changing the habit often defeats us before we even slip on those fancy new running shoes. What we need then is a new set of habits, a new way of feeling about our exercise needs. We need to turn that initial short-lived burst of enthusiasm to get into better shape into something that is completely sustainable. This is where Jonathan Robbins delivers the...
