Excerpt: .and hurry over a short sermon, they prayed God to let them have their young pastor back again. Indeed, it was a PATIENT WATCHING REWARDED. 141 general prayer, for the stranger gave out, Your prayers are desired for Mr. Haddon, who is dangerously ill. Captain Lee has returned. Mr. Hardcastle s letter hastened him home. Paul was as dear to him as his own son; and it is he who now sits by the bedside watching patiently. It is night--dark and stormy; such an one as must make the most ungrateful heart thankful for a home to shield them from the wintry blast. Ah! it is on such nights that our hearts, however hard they may be, must go out to poor humanity --the outcast, friendless wanderers in our land. God help them. Paul is sleeping. Although outside the storm beats wildly, yet within there...
