Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Rubi: A Tale of the Sea The Rubi, a Tale of the Sea. The frigate had heedlessly past her by: Her arrowy masts in the evening sky, Where the light of the day was well-nigh gone, Were no marks for the eye to rest upon. A night and a day Have glided away; Helmless and motionless there she lay, Tossed by the surges and dash d by the spray, A shapeless speck amidst the foam - But that shapeless speck is the Rover s home. III. It is evening and the sun is set, But the track of his glory is beaming yet. Spreading along the horizon s line With a mellow d radiance of light divine, As the echo of song at the music s close, Or the lingering scent of the wither d rose. IV. There came a moaning on the water, But it was not a woman s cry. As of a mother or a daughter In the first wild agony Of death s bereavement; nor the broken tone Of childhood wailing for some early grief. The first, perchance, its little heart has known, Falling like eastern showers, as full and brief; Where the next smile, that sparkles in the eye, Bathe s in the tear-drop, ere it passes by. This was no infant s grief, no woman s mourning: But one long murmur, deepening as it rose Above the waters, as the hollow warning Of distant surges ere the tempest blows; The voice of manhood s misery, in his pride Scorning the weakness that he seeks to hide. As if that gentlest passion were his worst; Till, growing by concealment,...
