Dear Sir: In accordance with your request I give you herewith my recollections of the Battle of Gaines Mills. In order to give a minute description of this battle, it may be well to describe where the New Jersey Brigade started from to go into it, and how it came to be where it did start from. The Brigade had been at the village of Mechanicsville about three and a half miles from Richmond on the northern side of the Chickahominy during the latter part of the month of May. It was moved up from Mechanicsville about a mile and a half west up the Chickahominy near the Meadow Bridge, but was not on picket at that bridge when Fitzhugh Lee s cavalry attacked the picket of the United States Cavalry commanded by Captain Royal and killed a number of his men...
