Bowles, and Others Mr. President and Gentlemen of the Commission: I appear for Col. Bowles and Mr. Humphreys, who have directed me to discuss the question of your jurisdiction to try them. Before proceeding to this discussion, however, I may be pardoned for briefly referring to some preliminary considerations. I will not deny that I am oppressed with the greatness and weight of the labor assigned me. Many circumstances conspire to make this day s work a burthen, while but few sources of external encouragement and support are to be found. I meet at the threshold of the solemn duty of this hour, the settled hostility of the Administration, the fierce and relentless spirit of the dominant party, and a strong tide of prejudice and passion created by a partizan press which, during this trial, has continually prejudged the questions to be discussed and decided here to-day. Nor, indeed, has this uncharitable work been confined to the press. Public speakers have caught up the testimony of witnesses even before their cross-examination; and, with such one sided, partial, broken fragments of the whole truth, have rushed eagerly into the popular arena, and proclaimed the guilt of the accused in every part of the State. It is impossible that these facts should not have met your observation; and almost as impossible that you should not, (although you are all unconscious of their influence,) be more or less affected by them. They can not, indeed, have passed unobserved by you who have been at liberty and circulating freely among the people; for...
