Not illustrated. 1910 Excerpt: .serving a customer whose average load for 24 hours, compared with his maximum, is high, will be lower than the cost of serving a customer the ratio of whose average to maximum load is low. In other words, the customer with a good load factor is more profitable to the distributing company. For example, suppose that a given customer has a connected load of lamps amounting to 10 kw. which are being supplied with current for only two hours in the evening, and suppose that another customer has a connected load of motors amounting to 2 kw. that takes current for ten hours. In either case, the kilowatt-hours per day are the same, but the lighting load comes when the demand upon the station is at the highest point; whereas, the motor customer is being served when the generating machinery would otherwise be running partially loaded. It is therefore evident that the customer whose demand is practically constant, such as the motor customer, is the most profitable, and is entitled to a better rate. The Wright Demand Indicator can be, and is used to great advantage in determining the maximum load on transformers. Its systematic use in determining the actual maximum loads on the transformers of a distributing system will insure the transformers against excessive overloads. As is the case with meters, it is not infrequent that transformers of too large a capacity are used for supplying a given connected load; the maximum demand indicator is...
