Createspace, United States, 2014. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 229 x 152 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The question of religion and spirituality in prisons is a rather underpublicized debate. A Rainbow Vision is a true story of ordinary people, of a prison, its chaplains and their ground breaking journey of faith. It is an inspiring account of the radical shift in the national prison chaplaincy from being Christian led and directed to becoming MultiFaith inspired and coordinated. In particular, it tells of how the MultiFaith Chaplaincy Team at HMP Canterbury encapsulated this new venture in a vision of hope whose impact they believed could change the world. In this personal account of the role of Chaplains in British prisons, the author reveals how MultiFaith Chaplaincy can enhance the lives of prisoners of all faiths and none without, at all, compromising the integrity of any individual. When HMP Canterbury became the first fully Foreign National gaol, the completely different population led to a fresh approach from the Chaplains. They walked the Wings together, ate together and laughed together. No faith was compromised because, at the heart of their vision, was mutual respect. The symbol of a rainbow in the dedication service lent itself beautifully to this ethos. Every colour is vibrant, distinct and special. Each is marvellous in its own right. When the hues arc together, they become interdependent and even more glorious. No colour loses its uniqueness. Yet, all have gained when they gently connect. Rev Cathy Hitchens combines a tale of her own inspiration and personal growth alongside that of the MultiFaith Chaplaincy in which she ministered. She came from a liturgical church background that focussed on the spirit and the church into a Chaplaincy that gave prisoners a Christian education whilst paying...
