RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 146 pages. LC Number: KF27 . O9425 2007k OCLC Number: (OCOLC)557308645 Subject: Prisoners -- Services for -- Washington (D. C.). Excerpt: . . . 11 equipped to deal with the overwhelming demand. The majority of inmates are either convicted of drug dealing or drug-related crimes. I believe that better drug treatment at Rivers could possibly reduce the high recidivism rate. In my opinion, anger management, domestic violence, and parenting classes would also be of great importance to the inmate population. I know Rivers, or any prison, for that matter, is not a college, but better programs could possibly make a big difference in whether someone stays out or returns back. Once he leaves Rivers, the inmate is either placed in a halfway house or directly back into society. Maybe with some type of transitional housing or better vocational programs inside, ex-offenders might have better choices or be better equipped to succeed from turning from criminal behavior. In my opinion, there is more to be done at Rivers, and I hope anything I said could help. If we all work together we could make things more conducive on the inside so that our fathers, brothers, and sons will be more productive on the outside. Thank you. AVIS OF LLINOIS Mr. D I. Thank you very much. We really appreciate the effort that you made to get here, and we certainly appreciate your testimony. We will go back to the questioning. I had just finished, and now I would yield to the ranking member for his round of questions. Mr. M. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. ARCHANT Thank you for your testimony Messrs. Robinson and Barnes. I think the main focus of the hearing today should be on is: what..
