Not illustrated. 1902 Excerpt: .as to give a much needed impetus to the stiff hat business. Should Young Brothers be able to popularize their square crown Horse Show hat throughout the country, the stiff hat manufacturer generally would be greatly benefited thereby. The style undoubtedly meets the demand for something new, and as it is being quite freely shown by both manufacturers and jobbers, there is considerable probability of its being sold generally. As to its being a second Grand Duke hat. that is yet to be demonstrated. Manufacturers to the case trade, especially those manufacturing soft hats, have noted little cessation in the demand for goods; in fact, they are all pretty well crowded with orders and the factories are all running steadily. A feature of the Fall trade of 1902 has been the increased trade in silk and opera hats. It may be that the general prosperity of the country has something to do with the adoption of this dress requisite. A special article on the silk hat appears in another column. The popularity of the Tuxedo, or dinner coat, has created a considerable call for a full dress soft hat to be worn therewith. The arbiters of fashion have given forth an edict that the silk or opera hat is not good form with the dinner coat, and a sensible ruling it is, too. The tall hat, be it silk or opera, is entirely out of place with a tailless coat. Retailers should make the most of...
