Ars Quatuor Coronatorum, Vol. 6: Friday, 6th January, 1893 (Classic Reprint) (Paperback)

By Unknown Author

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Ars Quatuor Coronatorum, Vol. 6: Friday, 6th January, 1893 When he finally settled down in London he made literature lecturing and science once more his mode of livelihood, and amongst all my contemporaries I remember no one who worked more strenuously or persistently than he. He seemed to me to take no rest, and I know he had a very hard struggle; for neither literature nor science pay their votaries magnificently. Both make demands on every moment of life. But Williams never complained and never seemed to me to be out of humour. He became a member of the Royal Astronomical Society and was soon a man of mark there. In London, as in Birmingham, his labours were diffuse. It was as if he could not bring himself to any speciality. Science to him was one - in all departments one - and literature was but the servant or handmaid of his science. For a long time he conducted a section, devoted to science generally, in the Gentleman's Magazine, and in a similar manner he contributed to Science Gossip. He...
