

Preventing Occupational Exposures to Lead and Noise at Indoor Firing Ranges

By Department of Health and Human Services: Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH)

Bibliogov, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 246 x 189 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) is a United States federal agency that is part of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). NIOSH conducts research, promotes safety and makes recommendations to prevent illnesses and injuries in the US workplaces. The following document is a publication issued by NIOSH, in hopes that it will assist with their mission. Employers and firing range operators should take steps to protect their workers and shooters from exposure to hazardous lead concentrations and noise levels at indoor firing ranges. The National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health (NIOSH) requests help in preventing injury and illness in workers at indoor firing ranges in the United States. Workers are potentially exposed to hazardous amounts of lead and noise at these ranges. They include thousands of employees at the firing ranges as well as more than a million Federal, State, and local law officers who train regularly at these facilities. In addition to workers, 20 million active target shooters are potentially exposed to lead and noise hazards at indoor firing ranges....

READ ONLINE
[8.47 MB]

Reviews

Simply no words and phrases to spell out. it was writtern extremely perfectly and useful. I am easily could possibly get a satisfaction of looking at a composed publication.

-- Prof. Maudie Ziemann

Totally among the best publication I have ever go through. This really is for all those who statte that there had not been a well worth studying. I am just very happy to let you know that this is actually the very best pdf we have go through inside my very own daily life and could be he very best ebook for actually.

-- Miss Audra Moen