Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from The Empire Review and Magazine, Vol. 23: February, 1912 In obedience to the recommendations of the influential Committees already referred to, the Governing Body have allotted for the building of a new Royal School of Mines, a sum of for the building for Advanced Engineering a sum of and for the new Departments of Botany, Plant Physiology and Woods and Fibres a sum of For these and other buildings so considerable a sum as has been provided: Up to the present, has either been expended or allotted for new equipment for teaching purposes. The staff employed in teaching work, formerly 82, now amounts to 121. The sum provided for their salaries, formerly is now per annum. But a more interesting statement can be made concerning the number of students who now avail themselves of the opportunities afforded them. The number in the three Colleges when the Governing Body assumed charge in 1907 was 665. At the commencement of the present session the number had increased to 843. The number doing advanced and research work in 1907 was 24. Last session there were 102. Three College sessions is not a long period in the history of a new institution having aims so high and so definitely related to Imperial and industrial efficiency. I venture to think that the work which has been accomplished in so short a time is remarkably creditable to the body which has undertaken it. Dr. Bovey, in the article which I have before mentioned, has dwelt upon the subject of character-training in collegiate institutions. An institution which does not recognise this as equivalent in value to any other training, will certainly fail to contribute men of worth to...
