Merula Press, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Jesus is masterful at seeing the exquisite in odd places. . He came for both the sophisticated and the rubes. Jesus finds beauty in those who have been mistaken for weeds. He loves the unlovely and sees each one of us in amazing, unimaginably beautiful ways. In her trademark communication style of transparency, humor, and poignant observations, author and speaker Melissa Maimone explores the delights and difficulties of faith-filled living. She shines a vulnerable light on both deep suffering and tremendous joy through short stories, Scripture, prayers, and reflective meditations that read like entries from a journal. More than a devotional, every chapter is a declaration of hope, that in the midst of this ordinary, fractured life, you are deeply cared for, intricately known, and immensely loved by God. A Note from the Author: Do you know the scientific difference between a flower and a weed? Nothing. Yep. It s true. The only difference between a flower and a weed is whether or not you want it to grow where it does. I have struggled with depression and anxiety most of my life and I don t like it. It s shameful. It s difficult. It causes me pain and limits my life in frustrating, embarrassing ways. Like a dandelion growing in my backyard, I was sure it needed to be plucked, mowed, or zapped with weed-killer. I ve considered depression a weed that I ve repeatedly tried to remove and yet stubbornly returns, despite all my efforts. Yet as I continue to follow Jesus, as I continue to read His Word, seek Him out, and bring my whole self to Him, I am discovering God and I have a very different perspectives...
