INSECTICIDES FOR USE IN HAWAII (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Excerpt from Insecticides for Use in Hawaii Vegetable gardening in the vicinity of the larger towns is at present the only side of horticulture developed within the Territory. No large orchards or vineyards exist. Hawaiian agriculture is confined mainly to the production of field crops. The raising of fruits is for the most part limited to a small number of trees about the homes. Generally speaking, the measures taken in combating the injurious insect pests of field crops must be precautionary, an effort to prevent their becoming established rather than attempting a remedy afterwards. But, when a pest is established, and its work is serious, the use of insecticides is in many cases feasible. The balance of nature in these Islands is, at present, decidedly in favor of the insect pests. Thorough cultivation of crops, other than cane, has not been practiced; varieties of plants especially resistant to insect attacks have not been chosen, the proper time of planting has not always been taken into account; certain necessary elements, which the plants need for food, have been lacking in the soils, and, except in the raising of cane, have not been supplied by fertilizers. Insect pests have crept in upon us from abroad unobserved, leaving their enemies behind. There are no regular seasons of extreme cold or dryness, and, thus relieved of natural checks, the pests have multiplied rapidly. All these factors have turned the balance in favor of the pest. Every effort must be exerted to reverse the balance in favor of the plant. A good strong healthy plant will often show no serious effects from an attack by insects where a weak or poorly fed plant will...
