Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Fall of 1,410 Native languages in the Americas For the first time, it is calculated that the Natives of the Americas (Indians, Red Indians, indigenous people or Amerindiands) spoke atleast 1,410 languages before the arrival of the Europeans. In 1696, King Charles II of Spain put a ban on the use of all Native languages within his empire and the Natives were forced to learn Spanish. In 1770, King Charles III of Spain completely banned the use of Native languages; no one was allowed to speak even his own language except the Spanish. The Great Tragedy began in the form of a Papal Bull Inter Caster issued by the Pope Alexander VI (1431 - 1503) on May 4, 1493 through which most of the Americas was allotted, donated or gifted to the monarchs of Spain (King Ferdinand II and the Queen Isabela). The following was its basic condition: all the barbarous nations of the Americas be overthrown and converted to Catholic Christianity (Catholicism or Roman Catholicism). For the conquest of the Americas, the job was initially handed over to Christopher Columbus to...
