Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.Excerpt from Practice Reports in the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals, Vol. 33: Of the State of New York When the law invests a public body with the power to do such an act, in express terms, the act to be done becomes the less Objectionable, inasmuch as the persons who constitute that body are selected for the purpose, and the restraining power of the courts should be exercised against them, if at all, with great caution. The history Of the laws creating boards Of health in this city and throughout the state, and in other states and countries, if it were proper to delay the decision of this motion to demonstrate it, will show that extraordinary authority in reference to the general course of legal procedure, has been conferred on the persons charged with the duties of preserving the public health. It is proper that it should be so to prevent the spread of epidemics, and the fearful mortality which ensues, and is kindred to the power which is given to the mayor and others to destroy...
