CHAPTER VIII ONE morning, about three years after his conviction, Costantino awoke in a bad humour. The heat was oppressive, and the air of the cell was heavy and sickening. One of the prisoners was snoring and puffing like a kettle letting off steam. Costantino had slept with Giovanna s last letter beneath his head, and a sad little letter it was; short, and depressing in the extreme. She told of her and her mother s dire poverty, and of the boy s serious illness. It never occurred to Costantino to reflect how cruel it was to write to him in this strain; he wanted to know the truth about them, however bad it might be, and he felt that to share all Giovanna s sorrows and to agonise over his inability to help her was a part of his duty. A barren...
