

Philanthropy of Ancient Jews: By the Letter of the Law and the Word of the Prophets

By Fridrikh Furman

Createspace, United States, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 203 x 127 mm. Language: Russian . Brand New Book  Print on Demand .This book (in Russian) is a popular historical overview of ancient Jewish philanthropy, as described by the letter of the Law and the word of the Prophets. It covers the fifteen-century period from the era of David and Solomon, to the time of completion of Talmud. The author, relying on the works of established scholars in the field and on Biblical texts, attempts to answer the following questions: - How Biblical commandments influenced the social ethics and social assistance practices of ancient Jews? - What were the views of Jewish sages on the origins and growth of inequality, on the poor and the rich, and on their mutual social obligations? - What were the share of the harvest for the poor, the poor man s tithe, and how the Biblical commandments of Sabbatical and Jubilee years helped poor debtors? - What were the labor laws of ancient Jews, their healthcare and education, and their support for orphans and widows? - When and how the tradition of individual assistance to the poor was supplemented by the activities of communal...
