Tho far from her Green Isle now cold she lies; And, for the shamrock, snowflakes kiss her bier, Calm will she rest; and friends around will pray, With love as warm, as e en neath Erin s skies; And hearts will guard her grave with sign and tear.--Peace, then, and hope, you ll meet her on--THAT DAY. She came from Ireland to Newfoundland, leaving home and friends behind. SONNET III. THE SILVER THAW. Written April, i879. At times the Frost-King April s showers invades, Gath ring the falling drops in crystal groups, And every branch a silv ry prism droops, Splitting the Sun s light in a thousand shades; And...
