

The Last Carthaginian (Paperback)

By Robin E Levin

Robin E Levin, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . In my previous book, In the Wake of Hannibal, the story is told by Hannibal's brother Mago, by Mago's lieutenant Gisco and by Gisco's wife Sansara. Gisco and Sansara survived the war and produced six children. Fifty years later, the Romans have determined to destroy their old enemy, Carthage. Gillimas, Gisco and Sansara's youngest son is grandfather to Gilimas and Simabal, aged nine and twelve respectively. The Children's fathers, Mazeus and Bomilcar have died in the war against the Numidian King Masinissa. The Romans played Carthage like an astute fisherman plays a fish. They demanded three hundred young, highborn hostages and young Gillimas older brother Mazeus becomes one of them. Then they demanded that the Carthaginians totally disarm. The Carthaginians complied. Then they demanded that the Carthaginians leave their city and move at least twelve miles from the sea. The Carthaginians, despite being totally disarmed, determined to resist and the war began. With his brother gone and his father dead, his Grandfather takes young Gillimas under his wing, determined to teach him business techniques and state craft...
