There are several animals that are native to the great upper part of the Western hemi-shire. Yes, of course I am speaking of the land mass known as North America. When looking at all the animals that we have here now it can seem like they have been here forever, but that is not so. A lot of animals such as horses, pigs, goats, and cows came over to this country from Europe just like many of your families did a long, long time ago. There are some animals however that are native to this great country we call America. One of our most feared furry friends is native to this great continent. Have you ever been camping? Well, if you have then these guys may have been a concern for you while you were resting up in that cozy tent. The brown Bear is a native North American mammal that can be found all over the west coast. These guys have a high temper but will usually leave you alone as long as you respect their space. Have you ever heard noises coming from the attic? Well, guess what kids. It was in fact not a scary monster that has it in for little boys. The creature that was probably wrestling through your Attic was none...
