Book Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: Putnam | A New Mitford Novel | Fans of the Mitford novels, rejoice: Father Tim Kavanagh is back in town, after sojourns to Mississippi and Ireland with his wife Cynthia. Father Tim is wrestling with the existential challenge of retirement and siren calls of various duties. He settles on filling in part-time at the bookstore while owner Hope Murphy is on bed rest during her imperiled pregnancy. A host of subplots are braided together, from the rebellion of Sammy, little brother of Tim's adopted son Dooley, to the romantic prospects of Fancy Skinner's sister Shirlene, new in town. It's a wonderful stew of small town characters, who will confuse new readers and those with bad memories, and details, some of which are funny and some of which need more milking. The ending, which takes place at Christmas, is too emotionally prepackaged and drags out a long book. Fans should debate whether Father Tim has to cry as much as he does, but like him, they will welcome the return to Mitford with its quirky citizens. | Father Timothy Kavanagh and his wife, Cynthia, are back in Mitford after a peripatetic few years following his retirement from Lord's Chapel and a long-planned vacation to Ireland. And though he's glad to be back home - and close to the familiar faces and places he holds so dear - he's unsettled by the prospect of retirement, and worries that he's lost his passion. But his family - and Mitford - needs him. His son, Dooley, is now engaged to Lace Turner, and about to finish college and begin his veterinary training. The two young people are headstrong and idealistic - and need time to overcome scars from their past before they can forge a new life together. Dooley's brother,...
