Wm, Bigler, of Pennsylvania, Delivered in the Senate of the United States, January 21, 1861 Nor, sir, need I tell the story of the subsequent career of our country under this new compact; how it has grown, as it were, by magic, from thirteen feeble colonies, with three millions of inhabitants, to thirty-three independent sovereign States, embracing a population of over thirty-one millions. Nor how all the members of the Confederacy, and the people, North and South, made common cause, in 1812, against a foreign foe, contributing, with unsurpassed zeal and generosity, money for the common Treasury, and men for the field of battle; and how those men stood or fell together. Nor how, at a later date in the history of the country, in the war with Mexico, northern and southern men rushed with unsurpassed zeal to the flag of the country, and followed it, and planted it wherever the rights and the honor of the nation required. Then there was no talk of North and South, of East...
