Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Recollections of a Checkered Lifetime, Vol. 2: Told for His Children in His Old Age It was a brain-busy time. All the wheels of activity were rolling on diligently, swiftly, except the wagonwheels and artillerywheels of the Army of the Potomac. These, indeed, were so quietly resting in their lazy camps that the whole country had grown weary of reading in the newspapers the stereotyped announcement that All is quiet on the Potomac. The vociferous response of On to Richmond had also become a stereotyped re-print. From what has already been set forth, it may be imagined that my own brain was pretty well occupied, but there was still room in it for the formation of many plans and the development of a number of curious undertakings. Speculation in stocks and gold, especially the latter, was all the while running insanely wild in New York and other financial centres and I formed an idea that it was almost true patriotism to be what was called a bear in gold. I therefore went in, a little at first and then deeper....
