Forgotten Books, 2018. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Research as a Career: Presidential Address I raise, therefore, three questions First - What should be the training of the investigator in agriculture? Second What are the most effective means of acquiring this training? Third - Are the conditions surrounding research work in agriculture such as are calculated to attract qualified men to it and to induce students to engage in definite preparation for it? These are large questions, of fundamental importance to the future of research in agriculture. He would be presumptuous, indeed, who should undertake to answer them on the basis of his own knowledge, and especially within the limits of one address, but the mere formulation of them may not be without its use. Certainly, it has seemed to some of us that the material basis of research has at present a tendency to outrun the supply of those qualified to utilize it, and that there are too many instances of mediocre men feeling about for subjects of investigation or taking up irrelevant or petty questions. If this impression be correct, the situation is a serious one and calls for prompt action to avert the danger of a collapse.
