Such estimates function as an indirect indication of what we may expect to happen in any set of conditions; we know and give ourselves credit for knowing nothing of value about the problem itself, but we know what is the belief of other men whose judgment we respect and which we accept in place of an opinion of our own. The degree of confidence which we feel in our own situation is simply the degree of confidence we feel in the value of the judgment of the authority whose pronouncement we accept as the best information available on the merits of the case. To be sure, the mode of formation of these opinions of others opinions is complex and obscure, and is rarely free from all passing of judgment on the case itself independently. There is a mutual reinforcement;...
