Excerpt: .command of the city a few days after, while Mr. Peters returned to York in this State, where Congress then held its session. T left, says Mr. Peters (in a letter to a friend), fifty thousand dollars, to the order of Arnold, for the payment of the clothing and stores. The traitor seized those articles and never paid for them, but converted the greater part of the money to his own use, among others to buy the country seat of Mr. McPherson on the Schuylkill. Col. Pickering and I detected him in ordering stores and provisions out of the public magazines to fit out privateers of his own, and for his extravagant family establishment. An attempt to stop this robbery produced between me and Arnold an open quarrel. I did not conceal, but wrote to headquarters my want of confidence in Arnold. When his traitorous conduct at West Point became public, neither Col. Pickering nor myself were the least surprised at it. He was placed in that command at the solicitous request of some respectable New Yorkers who knew only his military character, which I always deemed overrated far beyond its real merit. Mr. Peters exertions became peculiarly meritorious and useful at the time when General Washington suddenly changed his intended attack on New York to that of Yorktown in Virginia. We all know that this movement closed the war. DeGrasse, with his fleet, offered to co-operate with the South, provided the American army...
