While these figures are not large, they furnish an interesting as well as instructive study. In observing the following tables, showing the relative frequency of impaired and unimpaired risks, it must be considered that many, and perhaps the majority of these policyholders who availed themselves of a full physical examination, did so because they felt that their health was not of the very best, or, at least, were suspicious of some physical impairment. This is, no doubt, the explanation of the high percentage of impaired lives. The following table of full health examinations is interesting as showing somewhat the distribution by ages of impairments as follows: As might be assumed, the highest ratio (22 ) of unimpaired risks...
