Philosophies on Pan Africanism and decolonisation underpin a far greater vision we all share. For many of us the true destination is an African renaissance. The call for the decolonisation of knowledge is the ultimate call for freedom. It is the call for an African identity that affirms African values and beliefs and looks critically at Western hegemony. Featuring essays from some of the world's leading minds on African perspectives, Decolonising Knowledge for Africa's Renewal explores how to create a society that is devoid of colonialism and is ready for a renewed Africa. This book highlights the practical steps that need to be taken to decolonise knowledge and ultimately achieve an African Renaissance. Includes contributors from a wide range of academic institutions and expertise, locally and internationally, including Kenya, Nigeria, Malawi, South Africa and the United States of America. PRAISE FOR THE BOOK Decolonising Knowledge for Africa's Renewal is a beautiful thread in a reconstructive tapestry that patiently weaves passionate, practical and scholarly strands that address the dehumanisation and erosion of African cultures. It is a timely resource for leaders, academics, practitioners and activists interested in Africa's social and economic advancement. - Rev Vusi M Vilakati, Minister at the Methodist Church of Southern Africa.
