Book Description: Are you so busy you aren't getting anything done? Maybe even too busy to read this book? With humor and a ""been there, done that"" empathy, the author of Smart Women Keep It Simple pulls up the shades on her own life to encourage and challenge Christian women in today's hectic world. From her own experience and interviews with dozens of women, Annie Chapman knows that the demands and expectations of everyday life have become more insistent, more impatient and they won't go away by themselves. Your world won't let you simply stop what you're doing and shift into park. If you feel like you're running on fumes, it's time to check where your life is headed and to look hard at the resources you have and those you need. Running on Empty and Looking for the Nearest Exit explores Why it's hard to ask for help when you're wearing down Ho.
