GRIN Verlag. Paperback. Condition: New. 60 pages. Dimensions: 8.1in. x 5.8in. x 0.2in. Seminar paper from the year 2004 in the subject Sociology - Individual, Groups, Society, grade: 89, University of British Columbia (Department of Anthropology and Sociology), course: Community Studies, language: English, comment: , abstract: And me, I still believe in paradise. But now at least I know its not some place you can look for, cause its not where you go. Its how you feel for a moment in your life when youre a part of something, and if you find that moment. . . it lasts forever. . . says Leonardo di Caprio at the end of the movie The Beach, upon return from a failed utopian island community. This statement, together with the whole movie, expresses a widespread conviction: utopian communities are bound to fail. Paradise is nothing that one can realize in an actual community. If anything, it can be realized as a feeling or a state of mind; but why do we think that way Do we all feel that there is a sociological law that inevitably leads to the demise of a community that tries to realize the ideal society Is this point of view empirically provable These were the questions that intrigued me when I decided to make utopian communities my research topic; or, formulated into a single research question: Is there a single, most important feature or process that led to the demise or survival of former utopian communities To answer this question, we should first have a brief look at the great field of studies about the various kinds of utopias. This will help us achieve a better understanding and localization of the aspect of utopia we are looking at in this paper (utopian communities). At the same time, it will...
