Tropical butterflies impress by their variety, beauty and elegance. With their unique, luminous and rich colours they resemble flying precious stones. Whether sitting on leaves, resting on branches or flying, the butterflies and moths show their most brilliant parts in close-ups. Be fascinated by butterflies and moths, like the Atlas Moth, commonly known as the largest of his kind worldwide. The Atlas Moth, as well as the other butterflies, can rarely be observed in nature during daytime. Moreover the lifetime of some of these butterflies do not exceed a few days, where they mate and lay eggs. It is only during this short span of time that the life cycle of the butterflies can start again: from the caterpillar via the chrysalis and further on to the fully grown butterfly.
