Excerpt: . . . support for developing biomass as a key energy feedstock is coming from a variety of national and international organizations (GEC 2005; Ag Energy Working Group 2004; IEA 2004). Although these reports differ in the amounts of gasoline that could be replaced by ethanol from biomass, they all agree on three key issues: (1) Current trends in energy use are not sustainable and are a security risk; (2) No single solution will secure the energy future - a diverse portfolio of energy options will be required; and (3) Biofuels can be a significant part of the transportation sectors energy solution. In its evaluation of options for domestic production of motor fuels, the National Commission on Energy Policy (NCEP) recommended cellulosic biomass as an important topic for near-term federal research, development, and demonstration and found that cellulosic ethanol has the potential to make a meaningful contribution to the nations transportation fuel supply in the next two to three decades (NCEP 2004). The Natural...
