Excerpt: .for this study, the ring of scars left by the vascular bundles as they pass from the leaves into the stem will be seen beautifully marked just above the nodes.) If there is an eye or bud at the node, look and see if any of the threads go into it. Can you account now for the depression that occurs in the internode above the eye or bud? Make drawings of both cross and vertical sections showing the points brought out in your examination of the cornstalk. 214. The Vascular System.--To find out the use of the threads that you have been tracing, examine a piece of a living stem of wild smilax or other monocotyledon that has stood in red ink for three to twenty-four hours. (If the specimen stands in the coloring fluid too long the dye will gradually percolate through all parts of it. If this should be the case, look for the lines that show the ink most plainly.) Notice the course the coloring fluid has taken; what would you infer from this as to the office of the woody fibers? These threads constitute what is called the vascular system of the stem, because they are made up, to a large extent, of little vessels or ducts, along which the sap is conveyed from the roots to the leaves and back from the leaves to the root and stem after it has been elaborated into food. They are, so to...
