Createspace Independent Publishing Platform, United States, 2014. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****. Okinawa 9/11 - Six Lives Breaking Symmetry is Carlene Sobrino Bonnavier s third novel. She began writing it in Okinawa at 10:45 PM (9:45 A.M. in New York) on 9/11/2001. Typhoon Nari had just left 500 people dead, mostly in mud slides, in the Philippines and was headed full force to Okinawa. Hannah, the main character in the story, turned on the Armed Forces Television Network news. It started at 10:30 PM. She was a few minutes late, but she knew they d announce the status of Typhoon Nari throughout the broadcast. The Island might already be in lockdown. Probably there wouldnt be school the next day. What she saw and heard, in addition to the alarming news about the typhoon was, at first, incomprehensible: She looked back at the screen, and words appeared that she couldnt take in, couldnt make sense of, about a plane crash and.was it.the World Trade Organization? The words ran across the bottom of the monitor again, superimposed over the status of the typhoon and she could see, underneath the moving script, that the status of the typhoon had changed to TC-1. Still she didnt feel any difference in the atmosphere and could see nothing had changed outside her window at all. She looked back and tried to read the moving words, but they still didnt make sense, so she said them out loud, hoping that would help her catch their meaning: CBS News Live Coverage - Planes Crash into World Trade Center. Was it some kind of programming mistake? An action movie. It has to be an action movie. Then she heard the typhoon, the winds, flying up...
