Pasco s P23 Motor Launch: A Tradition of Cornish Boatbuilding (Paperback)

By Peter Bodle

Fonthill Media, United Kingdom, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book. Pasco s Boatyard started in 1771. When it was sold to new owners Craig Brown and Chris De Glanville in 2013, one of their aims was to preserve the traditions of wooden boats in the St Just Creek, and to foster the shipwright skills required to build and maintain them. Under previous ownership, the thrust of the yard s activities had been towards mooring, wintering, and maintaining boats for their owners-it was now time to change. One of the first decisions of the new owners was to agree on a way of demonstrating those skills and traditions, so what better way than to design and build the first new Pasco s boat in over a decade? It would also demonstrate to the local community the yard s commitment to expanding maritime employment in the St Just area. There was no better man to lead the team than Bob Edwards, who was a well-established designer and builder of boats, as well as an enthusiastic owner of an earlier Pasco s P21 Motor Launch. A few discussions, and several nights of drawing plans and making calculations later, and...
