Excerpt from The Right and Duty of Congress to Recognize War in Cuba: Speech in the Senate May 17, 1897 The Senate having under consideration the joint resolution(S. R.26) declaring that a condition of public war exists in Cuba and that strict neutrality shall be maintained Mr. Daniel said: Mr. President: The distinguished Senator from Maryland Mr. Wellington seems to have taken a shot at creation on the motion to refer the pending resolution. This joint resolution introduced by the Senator from Alabama Mr. Morgan recognizes a state of public war in Cuba, and upon that resolution he has discussed tariff, currency, and the late and the prospective Administrations of our Government in various ramifications; but in so far as he has spoken to the matter in hand, the points which he makes seem to be in but a small compass. It seems to me, Mr. President, that the remarks of the Senator are based upon an entire misapprehension of the character of the joint resolution, and upon an entire misconception of the feeling which actuates Senators who will give their support to it. In the first place, the joint resolution does not in the least involve an act of hostility to Spain. There is no writer upon international law with whom I have any familiarity, and there is no publicist of accepted reputation as an authority upon such subjects, who contends that it is not within the competence of any nation to recognize a state of public war in another without giving any ground of offense to the nation against which that public war exists on the part of a revolutionary body. It is a curious incident of the civil...
