One system may cost considerably less to produce and distribute power, but in utilisation the gain in point of economy may not be in favour of that system There are, indeed, so many factors to be taken into account that, for purposes of comparison, and also to determine whether it would cost less or more to purchase or produce power, the cost of each system should be ascertained at three distinct stages, viz.: --(1) The cost of purchase or production. (2) The cost of transmission or distribution. (3) The cost of utilisation. In order to compare the costs of hydraulic with that of electric power, it is necessary to reduce both systems to a common standard, and to determine in each case the cost of one horsepower hour delivered at the appliance where the power is to be utilised. This is the most convenient unit to adopt, and is applicable alike to both systems. In making up the working costs, the capital expenditure and working costs have been taken from the annual accounts, and embrace all the capital expended, up to the end of 1902, on buildings, foundations, culvert, machinery,...
