This was a plain declaration by a Radical organ, and may be accepted as stating the position of the majority, that appropriate legislation ought to be passed to enforce the Amendment when it became a part of the original law. The second section was, however, declared to be the most important--the statement that the North would gain 10 representatives and that the South would lose 10, making a total gain of 20 for the North, if the Amendment were adopted, and just the opposite if rejected, being inserted in every issue of the paper from September 20 to October 10, 1866. In an editorial on Secretary Brownings letter, it was declared that the independence of the States within their appropriate and constitutional spheres was not to be interfered with, though the Federal Government (Congress) would decide as to the spheres. If Congress...
