Reviews

Great electronic book and useful one. It can be written in straightforward terms rather than difficult to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

Merriam Press Military Monograph 88. Third Edition (February 2012). This story is about a place in time and a military unit which had a profound impact on military operations in the European Theater during World War II. The movement of petroleum products was critical in keeping the war machine moving and operating thousands of miles from the U. S. mainland. Providing the necessary fuels for the vehicles involved in fighting their way into Germany in 1944-45 was accomplished by an organization within the U. S. Army established by Charles A. McCann, a petroleum engineering graduate of the University of Oklahoma. McCann was a patriot who felt he could contribute to the war effort in a very specific way. His exceptional management skills and leadership ability made for a highly motivated organization that overcame the most difficult challenges at that time and place. While many have never known war, this story is a tribute to those men of the 698th Engineer Petroleum Distribution (EPD) Company. The EPD Company is their story and is told through the eyes of one of their comrades John Sullivan. He recounts these individual sacrifices and lived through the many challenges every day for two years. It provides a behind the scenes look at daily operations and those untold stories from Americas Greatest Generation. Contents: Introduction by Greg Slavonic, Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy (Ret.); History of the 698th Engineer Petroleum Distribution Company: Foreword; World War II Memoirs: Historical Framework; Induction and Reception Center; Basic Medical Training; Barkeley to Ft. Lewis; To Camp Claiborne; The Modern Army; History of the 698th Prior to September 1, 1943; Basic Engineer Pipeline Company TO and E; Early 698...
