Createspace, United States, 2013. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 216 x 140 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book ***** Print on Demand *****.On leaving the Army, Robert Bond found work at the Eastern Regional Headquarters of the Government Bureaucracy Corporation (GBC), in the monstrous concrete-and-glass Stellar Tower. Army life was straightforward but here things were not always what they appeared - and he began to think there was something odd about the building itself. He d recently been through an acrimonious divorce and fell for the beautiful receptionist, Drusilla, a resting actress. In her youth Drusilla had found fame as the choc-E-bar girl in TV adverts, but her career had been blighted when she was charged with the murder of her husband, although she had been acquitted. Her second brief marriage to a GBC Director ended with his sudden death from a heart attack which led to certain speculation, and she became known to some of her colleagues as the Black Widow. Robert liked his new job and liked his colleagues, and began an affair with Drusilla, but it transpired that Andrew Worthy, head of the Communications Department in which Robert was employed, also wanted Drusilla. In a forthcoming departmental re-organisation Robert suspected that Worthy was going to get him transferred away from Stellar Tower, but Worthy s sudden death solved this problem. The relationship flourished and the pair became engaged and lived together in Drusilla s flat, but she was reluctant to marry Robert, which he thought was due to her previous marital problems. Drusilla still wanted to tread the boards professionally but meanwhile took part in local amateur productions. Eventually she obtained work on the West End stage but at first came home after the show every night, then she started staying with a friend occasionally and Robert...
