Bernards extensive correspondence; remarkable character of it--His influence as a preacher; testimonies to this--Doubt whether he preached in French or Latin, or iometimes in each of these--His various Treatises, and the occasion of writing each--The Treatise on Grace and Free Will, a summary of S. Augustines teaching on the subject--His Hymns--Specimens of each of these. The literary activity of Bernard naturally took two great forms: that of the theologian simply, and that of the preacher, A third might, perhaps, be added--that of a writer of letters; for it may justly be said that very many of his letters are treatises, as many of his treatises are certainly in the form of letters. His correspondence was vast; and though it cannot be doubted that many ot his letters have perished, yet those which remain are four hundred and fifty in number, and occupy folios 101-818 of the fourth edition of his works, which is closely printed in quarto size. Nor are they the least remarkable of his writings. They are addressed to people of every 1 class in society, from the highest to the lowest; to kings, queens, and statesmen, to noblemen and knights, noble ladies, and men and women of the people. He was the correspondent of one Pope j S after another as long as he lived, and one came after another in quick succession; of cardinals, archbishops and bishops, clergy, monks and nuns, young men and young...
